From The Principal's Desk

The word respect is often associated with very simple yet the most significant feeling of appreciation, gratitude, kindness and politeness. One is respected when one acknowledges and shows reverence to people; places and things for what they are and stand for, without questioning their worth in any given situation.

This seven-letter abstract noun shows the most concrete way to build relationships and this simple action word, becomes the most coveted adjective when it depicts an important attribute of someone's behaviour and personality.

There is no need to wait for an extra-ordinary opportunity to practice this very basic but the most substantial aspect of one's behaviour. If we all understand that Respect begets respect, we will never undermine the worth of all our resources and will conserve these through judicious use; We will value contribution of each individual who we come in contact with directly or indirectly without asking about their background, caste, creed or gender. Every living being even the tiniest of a bird or an animal should be given the right to live with respect.

Respecting the diversity of beliefs, faiths and all social, cultural, religious practices makes an individual more humane and accepted by fellow beings.

Respect for contrasting ideas, different opinions and varied choices and not imposing oneself or one's ideology on others is a mark of the most respectful person.

Respectful person uses language as a mean of communication and as a means of bonding with others and not as a tool to create a divide over usage of languages, choice of clothes or even of food. If used loosely or superficially this word respect can mar an individual's confidence and life rather than adding value to one's personality.

If each one of us indulges in self-respect and mutual admiration the landscape of this globe will have no man-made boundaries and there will be abundance of resources and plenty of reasons to rejoice the universal brotherhood!

Principal

DR. PRIYADARSHI NAYAK
(M.Sc., MBA, B.Ed., Ph.D.)

Respect is a value, habit and behaviour expressed in so many ways that are central to our character. Respect is important for our civilised, modernised living because it moulds us to be open and reflect on our own values. Respect means that we accept somebody for who they are, even when they're different from us or we don't agree with them. It also means going beyond the token gestures and being genuinely respectful in thoughts, expressions and behaviour. Family members demonstrate true meaning of respect in everyday life in relationships, interaction, communication, decision making, power sharing and most importantly through role modelling. Child's primary understanding and learning of what respect comes from here. Education plays a complementary and critical role in equipping learners to understand why respect is central to character building (that goes beyond resume building) and how it will guide them for life long journey. It is a tool, moral compass that helps them navigate with dignity. It also equips them to embrace differences, increase compassion and empathy for others, and build multiple perspectives, while heightening their appreciation of every person in the world in which we live. That is why school is the ideal place for Practicing Respect. It is easy to respect people we like, people we like to be around and people who like us. However, those who have the virtue of respect have shown that first, understanding the value of all people, and, second, acting in a "respectful" manner toward others is key to living this virtue. Working collaboratively, we policy makers and educators have planned a holistic approach where all aspects of respect is practiced month wise, thus fostering an environment of respect in our school.

T H E M E O F T H E Y E A R

Rin respect reminds us to value all we have rather than crave and cry over things out of reach!

Eis to ensure that one does get the best if one gives the best to the world!

Sfor sure suggests us to safeguard all those who need our help irrespective of their preferences, caste, creed, gender, beliefs and faiths!

Pcautions us to preserve the values, resources and the best practices in behavior and actions!

Epoints at the attention, time and engagement our Elders deserve the most from us!

Ccalls for the collective responsibility towards society and community for sustainability of harmony and peace!

Ttells that Time is precious and that its time for action and to claim respect due to our attitude rather than as an entitlement!
